IRREVERENCE.

"THERE MAY BE SOME DEMOCRATS PRESENT WHO ARE REPENTANT AND I LIKE TO PREACH TO SINNERS. YOU HAVE HEARD OF THE FELLOW WHO SAID, 'I CAME NOT TO CALL THE RIGHTEOUS, BUT SINNERS, TO REPENTANCE.'"—Delano in his speech at Raleigh.

INTENSE INTEREST SHOWN IN THE ELECTION.

Never has greater interest been manifested in an election than that shown by the Conservatives in that through which we have recently passed. In fact, every one has been intensely excited over the reception of the news, and we hardly think there ever was a gubernatorial election in which the Democrats had so much at stake, and the Republicans struggled so hard for the mastery. On the one hand it was a contest for the principles of free government, for the assertion of those rights which the liberty-loving, patriotic people of the country have guarded with zealous care during so many years; on the other, it was a desperate effort of desperate men to hold on to the power which they had so long exercised to the injury of the country and to their own aggrandizement. Liberty and peace constituted the watchword of our party; gain office the cry of the other.

From the indications of the past election, the conclusion is inevitable that the Conservative element in North Carolina is alive to the great issues now before the country, and by the recent canvass many have been brought out to the polls who have not exercised their rights since the war; both sides have gained.

The monstrous proceedings of the Republican party during its lease of power, which were so vividly proclaimed by the Democratic canvassers, has had its effect; the people were aroused, startled at the charges against the dominant party and they determined that, with their consent, such should no longer be the case.

Such was the interest shown in the election, and taking this as a criterion by which to calculate, we conclude that politics will wax warm in the Presidential campaign.

Not only in our own State, but every where throughout the country, the friends of law and order have watched with intense interest the developments and result of our campaign, thus proving that they appreciated our situation and extended to us their best wishes for our success.

Now is the most opportune time for the Liberal party to perfect its organization. The people are sensible of the importance of the approaching Presidential campaign, and we urge upon our friends to keep alive the interest of the present as far as may be.

OUR CANDIDATES.

Throughout the whole State, our candidates have labored faithfully in the cause of the Democracy and whatever may be the result as to them, they will receive the thanks of the people of North Carolina.

Should they retire to the walks of private life, they will carry with them the gratitude of the people, and should they represent North Carolina in the National Legislature, or elsewhere they will have the confidence of their constituency.

The verdict of the people is that they have done their duty nobly.

The machine shops of the Harrisburg car company, at Harrisburg, Pa., which have been just rebuilt, have been burned. Loss $50,000. Three firemen were fatally hurt by the falling walls.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

The course of the Republican party since it came into the power, its disregard of lawlessness and oppression, its disregard of the plainest principles of government and violation of the personal liberty of the subject, have been a source of evil to the country, the magnitude of which can be hardly computed. And more particularly have we of the South been losers by the system which they inaugurated immediately after the war.

Possessed of power and all the means by which the machinery of government can be advanced, the Republican party has had it in its power to help the Southern people in every way, materially and politically; materially by doing all in their power for the development of our resources, politically, by endeavoring to convince the colored man as to the best means of improving his condition, and not by influencing his worst passions by appeals to his prejudices.

Upon their advent into power, their policy in regard to the Southern people was mapped out, promises were made which they said would rebuild their shattered fortunes. How have they fulfilled these promises? We believed then that they were false and intended only to deceive, and subsequent events have proved that in every respect they have proven recreant to the trust reposed in them, and for this very reason many Republicans of the North are joining the Liberal movement. By the unscrupulous acts of this party the credit of our own State has been ruined, our industries prostrated, and instead of being, as should be the case, on the road to prosperity, our people are almost as poor as they were at the end of the war.

Now, with all the bideousness of this party known to after it has violated every pledge ever made to the country, it is worthy of trust again? Will the people of the United States commit the important trusts of government into the hands of a set of men who have no rule to guide them in their administration, and who tear the constitution into pieces and trample it under their feet? We cannot believe it; we cannot believe that patriotism is dead in the great heart of the American people, and we have an abiding faith in the belief that after November next, the Republican party of the United States will be a thing of the past.

BOUTWELL.

While Mr. Secretary Boutwell's speeches in North Carolina did his own cause no good, it may perhaps have an unhappy effect on the material interests of the State.

North Carolina needs capital, desires immigration, and has labored to attain this object. Broken down in wealth as she has been by the result of the war, and her property destroyed, immigrants who possessed energy and capital were a great desideratum with her. Perhaps this might have been accomplished had it not been for the wanton destruction of her bonds by Radical tricksters, thereby creating a want of faith in her credit in the minds of capitalists, they justly concluding that where the paper of a State is in such a condition as that of North Carolina, something must be wrong at the fountain head. But to the invitations to immigrate to this State, but very few have responded. The Northern people have been deceived by the falsehoods which have been told by scheming men in regard to the insecurity of life and property, and this has had its effect.

In addition to all this, one of General Grant's Cabinet officers, George S. Boutwell, refuses to "clasp hands across the bloody chasm," which is equivalent to saying that the bitterness engendered by the war must not be calmed by the soothing influences of peace, that the people must stir among the ashes of the past and bring to life all that should now be forgotten, and that the wounds of other days must be again torn open.

This will not increase the tide of immigration to North Carolina. Mr. Boutwell was but the mouthpiece of the Administration, and Northern men who might feel disposed to come to our State, will decline to do so when strife, instead of peace and quiet, will reign.

North Carolina needs quiet, she needs peace, to which she has been a stranger ever since the war, she asks that corrupt Revenue officials and United States detectives be not allowed to over-run her borders and harass her people, she asks that her Constitution be not made the plaything of men who have no regard for its provisions, that no more Boutwells be sent here to help kindle the fires of hatred between the people of her own State, and between the latter and the people of the United States, North Carolina desires to be let alone.

When all these are accomplished, when her enemies cease to vilify her, when her State government gets into the hands of good and capable men, we may hope to see a tide of immigration set in towards her borders. But as long as speeches like Mr. Boutwell's continue to be made we need not expect it, for it is certain that they have their influence with immigrants.

A little German boy in Buffalo died to death from the effects of a wound in the leg, caused by a glass bottle, which was thrown at him by a playmate.

There were more homicides last week in New York than in any other previous week of the city's history.

RECONSTRUCTION.

Radicals have been engaged in the work of reconstruction since the close of the war; they accomplished a political reconstruction while they ignored the restoration of that happy feeling between the North and South which was so much to be desired but which they improved every opportunity to prevent. It has been a reconstruction of States; while political maligned detested the people of the North from entertaining those feelings towards us which otherwise they would. A reconstruction of feeling is what we need. If the people of the North and South are allowed to cultivate their feelings towards each other, there will be a new era inaugurated in our country. Bickerings will cease, the bitter feeling of the past will be forgotten and the North and South will unite as one and strive to elevate each other to a high condition of prosperity. To accomplish this object there must be some one in the Presidential chair representing both sections of the country, some one who will be the President of a whole people, and not of a section. Horace Greeley is that man, and we believe the people of the United States will show their confidence in him by electing him to the Presidential chair in November.

The Great Overflow of 1872.

From this time on, the above line will occupy a prominent place in the annals of Alabama, for the great overflow of 1872 has been the greatest mid-summer overflow ever before known in the Alabama valley.

Persons who have not visited the scene form no idea of it approximating to correctness, for there is nothing to which it can be compared for the purpose of conveying it to the mind. The waters are now falling the full length of the river, and a member of the Register family, who has just returned from a trip up and lower down the lower Tombigbee, brings the following most distressing report: All the bulked crops, (and they make up the bulk of the crops along the river,) are a total ruin from Jackson down. Corn and cotton, which a short time ago presented as fine a prospect as could possibly have been asked, now stretched out at every hand, as far as the eye could see, a scarred and blackened mass, looking, for all the world, as if a fire had passed over the plantations, burning the crop to a cinder, and allowing the leaves to still hang upon the stalks. On the Alabama and other rivers of the valley precisely the same condition of affairs exists. He estimates that in cotton alone the loss to Mobile will be almost incalculable—not less than one hundred thousand bales.

Many planters who considered themselves in the best of circumstances two weeks ago are now in actual want; and worse still, are deeply in debt, having been stimulated to go in more deeply than usual by their superior crop prospects. What is to become of them one can hardly tell. It is suggested that some steps ought to be taken with a view to their relief, for not a few are already suffering for the necessities of life.

The following, taken from the Grove Hill Democrat, tells a terrible tale of damage on the uplands and along the creeks:

"The destruction to crops and lands great beyond calculation. Corn was blown down, broken off, and terribly tangled and mangled. The hill lands have been washed unprecedentedly, and cut into gullies too deep to be plowed across. The lowlands were inundated, and all such along branches and creeks were swept over by the furious and unparallelled tides and the growing crops of corn and cotton levelled with the earth, or buried beneath its surface by the moving sands and mud. The entire crops of many farmers were thus in the short space of twenty-four hours, witnessed the destruction of their unusually promising fields, and see the rich fruits of the year's toil swept from their worthy grasp; just at the time when the most valuable portion of it—the corn crop—could be regarded as secured to them almost beyond peradventure."—Mobile Register.

Summer and the Colored People.

We find the following special telegram from Washington, in the Baltimore Sun:

Senator Sumner was this morning the recipient of a large number of letters and telegrams from prominent Republicans in all sections of the country, heartily congratulating him for the stand taken by him in his letter. Most of these letters were written on Wednesday, as soon as the writers had perused his letter to the colored people. From a large number of Massachusetts Republicans he has received a telegram congratulating him, and he has reason to believe that other prominent men in his State will soon follow the example of General Grant and announce their support of Greeley and Brown. Mr. Sumner says he cannot doubt that the feeling of the country for Greeley and Brown will assume the form of a great revolution, which will sweep the country as it has not been swept for years by a political party. He looks upon the nomination of Grant at Philadelphia as quite providential. Providence, he says, was wiser than any of the politicians or public men of the country. If any other man than Grant had been nominated the Republican party would have stood solid and united as before. Then the Democrats would have made a straight-out nomination, and the bitterness and hostility of years would still have been kept up. By Grant's nomination, however, many of the best men of the Republican party were driven off, and they, uniting with the Democrats, formed a party whose central idea was reconciliation and peace, a recognition of the rights of all men before the law, and an obliteration of the bitter lines that have divided the different sections of the country since the war. He is very hopeful of the result, and does not see what possible chance there is for Grant's election.

The population of Russia, which is 81,500,000 is thus subdivided: European Russia, 61,430,000; Poland, 5,310,000 and Finland, 1,750,000.

Dr. Howard Donahue Damages From Spain and Insists Upon His Rights.

The protest of Dr. Howard Donahue, a compulsory release from his Spanish prison under a royal pardon, and receiving his right to demand indemnity for the wrongs inflicted on him, has been received from the American Consul at Cadix. It is expected that his claim for compensation will come before the Spanish American claims commission sitting at Washington, unless the dissatisfaction of our government to the results of that commission in accomplishing its object lead, through diplomatic negotiations, to other modes of settling American claims arising in Cuba. So far no progress has been made beyond organizing and registering the claims presented, and though new arrangements have lately been agreed upon for taking testimony in Cuba, very little confidence is felt in their practical success. —Washington Correspondent N. Y. Herald.

DIFFICULTY BETWEEN COLONEL MOSBY AND DR. WITHERS. It is learned that Dr. J. B. Withers, of Warrenton, challenged Col. J. W. Mosby. The difficulty arose, it is supposed, from a joint political discussion. The challenge was promptly accepted, but both parties were arrested and held in four thousand dollars not to fight in Virginia.

The great Southern mail route has made a large reduction in the price of first-class fares between the city of New York and important Southern ports. The cause of the decline is said to be competition with the steamship lines. The following are the New York rates: From New York to Galveston, $75.75; to New Orleans, $80; to Mobile, $46; to Seina, $40; to Montgomery, $40.

The First Day of August Next, expose to public sale, on the premises, the valuable property known as the Yarbrough Hotel.

This property is situated on the Eastern side of Fayetteville Street, in the city of Raleigh, and embraces about one acre of ground—it is one of the most central points in the city, being not more than four hundred yards distant from the Deposits of the Raleigh & Gaston, the Raleigh & Augusta Air Line, and the North Carolina Railroads; within one hundred yards of the proposed Masonic Temple; the same distance from the Post-office and Federal Court House; on the opposite side of the street from the Wake County Court House, and within five minutes walk of the Capital.

The hotel building is three stories high and contains first class guest chambers, parlors, a dining room, two parlors, a reception room, office and three family rooms. The house is commodious and well ventilated; the passages are broad and spacious; the dining room, parlors and office are large, well lighted and comfortable, both in summer and winter.

All the buildings on the premises are in excellent order, and afford every convenience to hotel keeping.

The terms are as follows: One-fourth of the purchase money in cash; the residue in three equal installments, bearing interest at six, twelve and eighteen months from the day of sale; the first of the credit installments to be secured by bond with at least one good surety, title withheld until payment of the purchase money; and so long as any part of the purchase money remains unpaid, the purchaser to insure the building on said lot, in a sum equal to such unpaid balance, the loss, if any, to be applied to the payment of said purchase money; should the purchaser fail to so insure the said buildings, I shall have the right to effect such insurance and the purchase money expended by me to be deemed a part of the purchase money, bearing interest from date of expenditure, and to be paid at the same time with the installment of purchase money next thereafter falling due.

THE OLD WHITE HAT.

A song for the Hat, the Old White Hat.
With a chorus loud and long;
Let the notes ring out with a joyous shout,
From an army of voters strong;
To a victor's crown, as Grant's sun goes down,
And the light in the West fades out,
It will surely turn, and our hearts will burn.
As we greet it with a shout,
Chorus—Then here's to the Hat, the Old
White Hat.
It has won an honest renown,
For its white shade in the shadow of the sun,
Shall cover the sword-bought crown.
In the days of old, when hearts grew cold
In the cause of the sore oppressor,
It was a sword that by fitting word
With triumph the good day brought;
And when today, comes a woman gray,
To plead for a dying man,
It has dared prove true to the helpless few,
In spite of a party's ban.
Chorus—Then here's to the Hat, the Old
White Hat.
It will see rare days, when the bonfires blaze,
And the North and the South ring out,
Fate's high wheel, and the East and the West;
Respond with a victor's shout:
New Grant holds sway, and we all obey,
But too long has the Kaiser sat
In our chair of state, where we patiently wait.
To welcome the Old White Hat,
Chorus—Then here's to the Hat, the Old
White Hat.
